Reverend Awaiting.

When we read on the blackboard of disappointment we shall make the wonderful discovery that the Savior has anticipated our coming and has made simple provision. There will be heavenly cordials, and there will be the comforting of a new hope.

Capt. John Smith's Signature on Paper

Richmond, Va. — James Taylor Adams of Wise owns what may prove to be the only signature of Capt. John Smith in America. Adams, who is engaged in geological research work, recently secured a collection of old documents from England, among which was a contract on which appears what is asserted to be the signature of Captain Smith as a witness.

The document is written on parchment and is dated so that much of it cannot be read, but the signature is well preserved.

The date of the instrument, which corresponds to the time of Smith's journey in England for treatment of his burns, is "Mar. 15, James 1607," meaning March 16, 1607, in the fifteenth year of reign of King James I of England.
